LONG'S SUCCESSOR?

Followers of the late Huey P Long report that Gov O K Allen (above) of Louisiana has temporarily taken over leadership of the Long political organization and probably will stay at the helm permanently. Opponents of the Long faction however predicted his rule will disappear now that its dynamic chief is dead. Gov Allen commenting on Long's death said it marks the passing of the greatest champion of the common rights of all America. (Associated Press Photo)

Body Lies in State in Rotunda of $5,000,000 State Capitol Which He Built

SURROUNDED BY GUARDS

Will Be Buried on Statehouse Lawn at 4 P M Tomorrow Gov Allen Plans Ceremony

By The Associated Press

BATON ROUGE, La, Sept 11—Dynamic, fervid Huey P Long, toppled from the peak of power by an assassin's bullet, lay still in death today amid the monuments of his lengthy political reign over Louisiana's affairs.

This stunned capital city, scene of his unprecedented rise to domination in an American state, of his legislative coups that made him a dictator, of his use of the militia to enforce his will, turned out to pay homage at his bier and give him a leader's burial.

The rotunda of the ornate $5,000,000 state capitol which he built to a height of 33 stories when governor was chosen as the place for his body to lie in state, surrounded by a guard of honor of national guardsmen and 24 of his beloved Louisiana State university cadets, from 1 p m central standard time (2 p m Marion time) today until time for the funeral at 4 p m tomorrow (5 p m Marion time).

To Be Buried on Lawn

He will be buried on the statehouse lawn in the slim graceful shadow of the capitol.

Services will be in charge of Rev Gerald L K Smith, a leader in Sen Long's countrywide share our wealth movement. The clergyman was close by when Dr Carl A Weiss Jr, Baton Rouge physician, mortally wounded the senator and was riddled with bullets by Long's bodyguards.

A site on the capitol grounds for the burial place will be selected by a committee of the legislature. This was the final day of a special legislative session called to act on bills presented to it at the senator's bidding before he was shot down.

Funeral arrangements were in the hands of the senator's closest friend, headed by Gov Allen, to whom the Long leaders have turned for temporary leadership.

In Washington Senators Caraway of Arkansas, Overton of Louisiana, Thomas of Oklahoma and Schall of Minnesota were named to represent their colleagues at the funeral.

Machine's Future Debated

The sense of shock that gripped the city on first news of the shooting and held it in somber silence after the death of Sen Long yesterday gave way today to a subdued flurry of speculation over what would become of the all powerful Long state political machine.

Whether Mayor T Semmes Walmsley of New Orleans, Long's bitterest political foe, the Square Deal association, anti-Long organization with which his troops clashed on the streets of Baton Rouge last January, or others would come into power and break the Long machine entered the speculation.

The fate of the share-our wealth movement which Long built to nationwide proportions and hoped to use as a stepping stone to the presidency of the United States also was considered uncertain. Leaders here announced Gov Allen would direct its activities but others predicted that without Long it would break up.

DELAWARE LEADER INJURED IN BLAST

By The Associated Press

DELAWARE, O, Sept. 11—V F Crawford, 40, president of the Crawford Supply Co, lay in a critical condition today from burns suffered in an explosion at his plant.

He was burned about the face and body.

Officials of the company said they believed the blast was caused when a spark from an electric motor touched off fumes. They estimated damage to the plant at $1,000.

SPAGIANI FACES INDICTMENT IN MURDER CASE

Grand Jury Returns First Degree Charge in Slaying of Jesse Yoder

FOUR OTHERS RETURNED

Lamonds Accused of Breaking and Entering Oil Station Plant

Five indictments, including one of first degree murder, were returned against five persons by the September term grand jury today in its report to Common Pleas Judge Robert S Young.

Seven other cases studied by the grand jury in its two-day session Monday and Tuesday during which 49 witnesses were questioned were ignored by the jury.

The first degree murder indictment was returned against [illegible] Spagiani [illegible] in connection with the fatal shooting of Jesse Yoder, [illegible] of 751 Creston Avenue, Aug [illegible] following a quarrel in a penny ante poker game over 10 cents. Yoder died two days later of gunshot wounds he suffered in the quarrel.

Lamonds Indicted

An indictment charging breaking and entering was returned against Sherrill B Lamonds, 23, of Greensboro, N C, one of two men who were the object of one of the most extensive manhunts in the history of Marion county following their escape from a truck under police fire. Lamonds, brought from North Carolina for prosecution, is charged with breaking and entering the bulk plant of the Pure Oil Co Aug 21. Following the burglary, in which Prosecuting Attorney Paul D Michel said he has admitted taking part, Lamonds and a companion who is being sought attempted to elude police. Police fired on Lamonds' truck, puncturing four tires, and Lamonds and a companion escaped in the darkness. The manhunt in which highway patrolmen and authorities from nearby counties took part followed.

Leonard Armstrong of near Pellefontaine was indicted on a charge of grand larceny in connection with one of the largest stock thefts in the recent history of the county. He allegedly participated in the theft of sheep from the Harry L Thompson farm south of Marion on May 14. In this theft an improvised runway was built in a field on Thompson's farm to drive the sheep into a truck. The entire flock was taken. Although Thompson reported more than 60 head of sheep were taken Armstrong is charged with theft of only 40 of the flock.

Faces Two Counts

LeRoy Austin was indicted on a charge of breaking and entering the Home Market on Silver street last July 29. An extra count of entering also was returned against him.

Watson Swisgood, alias C. I. Watson, of West Mansfield was indicted on a charge of issuing a $50 check to the Campbell National bank of LaRue without sufficient funds to pay it. He recently was apprehended by Marion county authorities at West Mansfield.

Case of Harry Morgan, charged with automobile stealing, was not considered by the jury in view of the fact he is wanted as a parole violator, Prosecutor Michel said. The prosecutor said he understood Morgan had not yet completed a probation period following his release from imprisonment on a previous auto stealing charge.

It is expected that those indicted by the grand jury will be arraigned before Judge Young Thursday or Friday. The judge will dispose of cases of those who plead guilty to indictments and trials will be arraigned for those who plead not guilty.

FUND SHIFT SOUGHT FOR AGE PENSIONS

Action To Transfer Money Hits Snag Davey Wants Legislative Action

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O, Sept 11—Church Protten, deputy state auditor, said today he would seek $350,000 from the state emergency board for the payment of 22,000 old age pension checks due for August.

He made an informal motion for transfer of the money from the emergency fund to the pension fund yesterday but action was delayed after M. Ray Allison, director of finance and a member of the board, indicated Gov. Davey disapproved of the proposal.

The governor contends the legislature is responsible for the exhaustion of pension funds. He declined to call a special session of the assembly immediately to provide more funds.

Allison conferred with the governor and reported Davey considered the problem one for the legislature to solve.

A transfer of funds would require the approval of four of the five members of the board.

Payment of pensions was halted yesterday. Legislative action would be necessary to provide $5,770,000, the estimated amount needed for payment of pensions until Jan. 1.

8,000 View Exhibits on First Day of County Fair

Extensive Programs Arranged for Three Days, Believe Attendance Will Surpass Expectations

The three big days of the [illegible] exhibits [illegible] annual Marion county fair started this morning following yesterday's formal opening which attracted to the fairgrounds a crowd estimated by fair officials at more than 8,000 persons.

It was estimated that [illegible] persons were on the grounds last night, part of whom saw the first nightly performance of the New York Follies, a troupe of seven entertainers who will present a program of song, dance and a [illegible] in front of the grandstand each night of the fair.

See Large Attendance

Charging admission this morning for the first time, fair officials saw the grounds fill rapidly and predicted that today's attendance, together with crowds expected Thursday and Friday, will exceed early predictions that 30,000 persons will visit the fair.

Where to house the unprecedented flood of exhibits presented a problem yesterday. Fair officials [illegible] by erecting tents to house the overflow. One tent was put up to take care of an overflow of the cattle department and a number of other tents were put into use by the junior fair and commercial exhibitors, several of whom sought space in the art hall after the booth space there had been sold out.

Today's program was to be featured by the program of the gasoline rodeo this afternoon in front of the grandstand. Sixteen separate acts including automobile polo, stunt riding, motorcycle races and the shooting of a man from a huge cannon were scheduled.

The program of the New York Follies to be given nightly at 8:15 following a band concert includes one and one-half hours of music and dancing. Headed by Joe Franklin of Indianapolis, the troupe offers feature acts that include fast tap dancing by Beele Davis, a comedy act by Stanley Hoke and his stooges, an acrobatic act in which six persons take part, chorus numbers by a group of eight girls, blues songs and acrobatic dancing. The troupe carries its own eight-piece band.

Tonight's presentation of the Follies will be preceded by a concert by the Eagles band at 7 o'clock and will be followed by a fireworks display. Another feature of tonight's program will be a home economics demonstration in one of the junior fair tents at 7:30.

Lamb Show Tomorrow

Thursday's program will include the pet lamb show sponsored by the Kiwanis club, with four fast races scheduled, first of two afternoons of harness racing, a parade in the afternoon of the 90 draft horses entered in the horse department exhibits and a night program of band music, Follies entertainment and fireworks.

National guardsmen are in charge of parking and police work on the grounds.

County offices were closed this afternoon and will be closed again Thursday and Friday afternoons to permit officials and employes to attend the fair. City offices are to be closed Thursday and Friday afternoons and the city public schools will be closed Friday at noon. Rural schools are being dismissed one day for the fair, either Thursday or Friday.

Declares Main Bridge Binding England with Continent Will Have Collapsed

By The Associated Press

GENEVA, Sept 11—Great Britain threw its whole weight behind the League of Nations covenant in its entirety in a declaration of policy by Sir Samuel Hoare, British foreign minister, before the league assembly today.

At the same time Sir Samuel warned the world that if the league fails to enforce a peaceful settlement of the Italo-Ethiopian dispute the main bridge binding England to the continent will have collapsed.

May Approve Sanctions

The bold pledge to back the covenant in its entirety was interpreted as an indication that Great Britain will not shrink from sanctions if these become necessary to quench the African blaze.

The Italian delegates immediately interpreted the speech as a British threat to quit the league unless the league obeys England.

Even the phrase British blackmail was heard in Italian delegation circles.

The delegates of small nations, however, generally hailed the British diplomat's speech with enthusiasm, and one delegate [illegible] it was not only a historic event but the greatest speech ever delivered before the league by a British statesman.

GALION CANDIDATE'S PETITION APPROVED

Myers Okays Nominee Who Promises To Give $1,000 of Salary to Charity

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O, Sept 11—Secretary of State George S. Myers advised the Crawford county election board today to accept the nominating petition of Dr P A Murr as an independent candidate for mayor of Galion if the petition is valid.

The question of whether Dr Murr violated the corrupt practice act in promising to donate $1,000 of his salary to charity, Secretary Myers said, is for the courts and not the election board to decide.

He called the board's attention, however, to a supreme court decision in a Henry county common pleas judge case in which the court held that the successful candidate was disqualified from serving because he had promised to accept only the state's portion of the salary.

EFFECT OF LONG'S DEATH ON 1936 IS MOOT QUESTION

Nye Says He Might Have Held Balance of Power but Other Leaders Disagree With Him.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11 — Whether a strong threat to President Roosevelt's reelection died with Sen Huey P Long was a subject of disagreement today among political leaders.

"Long might easily have held the balance of power in 1936," said Sen. Nye, Republican of North Dakota.

"His death lessens the possibility of a division in the Democratic party and to that extent strengthens the administration.

"Most emphatically, there is no one on the horizon to take his place."

But Sen. Thomas, Democrat of Utah, Sen. Norris, Republican of Nebraska, and a number of others placed different estimates on the possible consequences.

Expressing belief that [illegible] death would not affect [illegible] of next year's election materially, Thomas asserted a bolt by the Louisianan from the Democratic standard would have given the Democratic presidential candidate a conservative vote-getting appeal.

Thomas said no third party movement ever had been effective in the United States and added Sen. Long was "born in the wrong place to do damage to the Democratic party."

Sen Norris said he doubted that the administration would be either strengthened or weakened politically as a result of the [illegible]tion.

PRISONER SENTENCED IN MARION ESCAPES

Believed To Have Made Getaway in Reformatory Truck.

A man sentenced from Marion county was one of two prisoners who escaped from the Mansfield reformatory this morning, an Associated Press dispatch reported.

The fugitives are Frank Ferguson, alias Frank Sololo, alias Joe Blake, [illegible] of Columbus, sentenced from Marion county May 3, 1932, and Daniel Rufen, 24, sentenced from Butler county for burglary.

Ferguson was sentenced to 10 to 25 years for his part in holding up the [illegible] terminal office on North Main street.

Ferguson and Rufen are believed to have escaped in a reformatory truck found missing after they fled.

Their escape increased to eight the number of reformatory prisoners who have fled in the last three weeks. Two have been recaptured.

Three men, all from Columbus, were indicted in Marion county for the bus office robbery. Ferguson and Mike Greene were sentenced to 10 to 25 years while Ernest Dunnon was given over to Columbus authorities under a previous indictment. Greene was released on a commutation order by former Gov. George White on June 1, 1935.

The trio lined up employes of the bus terminal against the wall and robbed the safe of $282.50 on Feb. 28, 1932. Ferguson pleaded not guilty May 9 but changed his plea to guilty May 12. He was held on $15,000 bond.

News of the escape was broadcast by police radio and Marion police were asked to be on the watch for the fugitives.

DISAGREE WITH OHIO DIRECTOR

O. C. McCurdy and Leo J. Cusic Resign as Protest to Berrodin Act

POLITICS IS CHARGED

Refusal of Chief To Follow Recommendation of Board Brings Dispute

County Commissioners O. C. McCurdy and Leo J. Cusic yesterday resigned as members of Marion county's board of the division of aid for the aged.

Mr. McCurdy this morning said the resignation followed refusal of H. J. Berrodin, state chief of the division, to follow the board's recommendations in selecting appointees to work in the Marion county pension office.

Resignation of two of the three members of the Marion county board came as a climax to a long series of differences Mr. Berrodin has had with county boards throughout the state in the selection of local pension workers following state civil service examinations in which lists of persons eligible for appointment were selected.

Mr. McCurdy's resignation to Mr. Berrodin was made in a letter mailed yesterday. The letter stated: "I herewith present my resignation as a member of the Marion county board of aid for the aged, same to be effective immediately." Mr. Cusic's letter stated: "I herewith tender my resignation effective immediately as a member of the Marion county board of aid for the aged."

Appointment Refused

Differences between the Marion county board and the state pension chief developed early in July when the county commissioners recommended Mrs. Pauline Barnhouse of Marion and Homer C. Moslin of the Richland pike in Marion township for the positions of investigators in the Marion county office. Mrs. Barnhouse was selected by the county board from a list of four women certified by the state civil service commission as being eligible for appointment and Mr. Moslin was selected from a list of four men certified by the civil service commission.

Mr. Berrodin, the commissioners said this morning, answered these certifications with a letter on July 10 stating that "this office is of the opinion that the investigating work in Marion county should be handled by a man and therefore we are rejecting the name of Mrs. Barnhouse and ask that your board submit your recommendations from the male eligible list." The same letter also stated that "at the present time you have two investigators but we are limiting the personnel of your office to one administrator, one investigator and later on, one part time office assistant."

With Mrs. Barnhouse's name eliminated as a possible appointee by this move, Mr. Moslin's name was left on file with Mr. Berrodin for appointment to the position of the one investigator the Marion county office was to have, the commissioners explained.

Asks for More Names

However, Mr. Berrodin, Mr. McCurdy said, refused to appoint Mr. Moslin and asked the board to submit "second and third choices" from the eligibility list.

NEW INDUSTRY HEADS NAMED

Ft. Wayne Men Appointed President, Vice President of Soy Bean Firm

OFFICES ARE OPENED

Executives Expect Plant To Be in Operation by Oct. 15

Names of the president and vice president of the Old Fort Mills, Inc., a new Marion industry organized to extract oil from soy beans and manufacture by-products from the grain, were announced today.

P. Turner of Ft. Wayne, Ind., has been named president and H. A. Holland, also of Fort Wayne, is vice president. Both formerly were associated with the Allied Mills, one of the largest grain industrial concerns in the country, with offices in Chicago. Mr. Turner was general sales manager for Allied and Mr. Holland was advertising manager and in charge of promotional work.

Offices Opened

Temporary offices of the Old Fort Mills, Inc., were to be opened today on the second floor at [illegible] East Center street. The company will continue its preliminary operation there until opening next month of its new offices and plant, the location of which has not yet been definitely selected.

The executives of the company said they expect the plant to be in operation by Oct. 15 in time to purchase the soy bean crops in Marion county and nearby counties which will be harvested in October, November and early December.

Farmers throughout the state are urged by the company officers to grow beans that can be milled. Yellow beans such as the Manchu, Dunfield, [illegible] Illini are the desired types as they produce a large amount of oil and meal. Complete information regarding the new soy bean industry is available at all grain elevators.

Both Mr. Turner and Mr. Holland are thoroughly acquainted with the phases of the soy bean industry and have announced it is their intention to make the Old Fort Mills one of the outstanding plants of its kind in the country. New uses for soy beans are being developed regularly and research men predict that the soy bean is destined to become one of the important farm crops in the United States.

Federal Aid Likely

At the present a large portion of the soy bean oil meal is imported, and it is expected that as more beans are grown and new markets established, the federal government will provide tariffs that will be conducive and favorable to this fast developing industry.

"Further announcements regarding the progress of the establishment of the Old Fort Mills are expected to be made within a few days, W. D. Brown, secretary of the Marion Chamber of Commerce, said."

STAR MAIL ROUTE DRIVERS TO MEET

Ohio Postal Contract Holders Will Consider Formation of Organization.

Star mail route contract carriers of Ohio will hold a meeting to effect a state organization on Thursday night at 7 at Hotel Harding.

The organization will be formed in an effort to obtain permanent star route contracts, with rates of pay on a par with those paid for other forms of mail transportation, according to an Associated Press dispatch.

Postoffice officials here said they had received no formal notice of the meeting which has been called by E. J. Velder of O'Neill, Neb., national star route president.

Harry White of Richwood is the only star route carrier operating out of the Marion postoffice, officials said. His four-year contract to serve Waldo, Prospect, Richwood and Green Camp was awarded by Postmaster General James A. All star routes are let by contract. The carriers deliver mail to the postoffices in the communities served and pick up mail to be brought to the Marion office.

RIGHTMIRE DECLINES TO YIELD TO DAVEY

Resubmits O S U Budget, Calling for $7,155,600 Despite Governor's Warning

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O, Sept 11—President George W. Rightmire of Ohio State university declined to bow today to Gov. Davey's demands that the school slash expenditures.

He resubmitted the original budget of $7,155,600 for the institution. When the governor vetoed $8,400,000 from the [illegible] appropriations bill he cut $1,200,000 from the allowance for Ohio State.

Action of Rightmire was a direct slap at the governor's instructions to state department heads that revised budgets shouldn't exceed the amount he allotted to them.

The revised biennial appropriations bill will be presented to a special session of the legislature. It became necessary when Gov. Davey found he could not transfer funds for necessary functions to items which he had vetoed.

In resubmitting the budget President Rightmire said it had the support of the trustees and he called attention to the Sherrill government survey report which recommended no cut in the university operating expenses.

BRITISH STAND STEP TOWARD SANCTIONS

to be interpreted as an ultimatum to Premier Mussolini but rather as an emphatic warning to Italy to think twice before rejecting the last hope compromise likely to be offered soon to Il Duce.

What irritated the Italians particularly was a veiled attack by Hoare on the Fascist regime when referring to the dangerous features of government propaganda he said:

Too often artificial excitement of national feeling is made the excuse for the repudiation of obligations or for a threat of force.

Sir Samuel suggested a peaceful reorganization of the distribution of the world colonial and raw materials but it was waved aside by the Italians as too vague to be interesting.

Says Weak Must Be Aided

We believe, said Sir Samuel in outlining the position of the British empire, that backward nations are without prejudice to their independence and integrity entitled to expect that assistance will be afforded them by more advanced peoples in the development of their resources and the building up of their national life.

The British statesman declared Great Britain stands for the collective maintenance of the League of Nations covenant in its entirety and particularly for the steady collective resistance to all acts of unprovoked aggression. His statement was a clear allusion to the Italo-Ethiopian crisis.

To question Britain's fidelity he said is dangerously misleading.

Delegates listened in rapt attention and crowds which packed the galleries sat silently as Sir Samuel delivered what they interpreted as a friendly warning to Premier Mussolini that Britain would be strong in urging opposition to any unprovoked war against Ethiopia.

eral at heart. Donahey asserted and that he would have been guided largely by the lineup that presents itself at the conclusion of the conventions. It is probable he would have supported the President unless the opposition had presented a progressive candidate who met his ideals.

Discounting third party possibilities generally he expressed belief that no one man can line up the progressives in this country.

Observers pondering the views of Long's colleagues considered also Postmaster General Farley's assertion at a press conference yesterday that he never had thought there would be a substantial third party movement.

Farley said he expected every state to send delegates instructed for President Roosevelt to the Democratic convention.

How about Louisiana? he was asked.

I'll stand on the original statement, he replied.

AFRICAN WOMEN JOIN "DEATH BATTALIONS"

Sharpen Spears and Swords To Meet Onslaught of Il Duce's Warriors

By The Associated Press

ADDIS ABABA, Sept 11—Ethiopian women set about mobilizing battalions of death throughout the empire today ready for an imminent departure for the front.

In stern array were the daughters and granddaughters of the female warriors who fought with fierce fanaticism against the Italians on the Adua battlefield of 1896. Fierce, sharpening spears and sabres after Emperor Haile Selassie had accepted the offer of their services.

Their leader, the beautiful tiger-eyed Madame Wayzaro Abebith Chirkoze, said they had no fear of Italian airplanes and tanks.

These mechanical things can be made by man but only God can bestow courage and He will enable us to triumph over the Italians, she asserted.

When our husbands, brothers and fathers see us fighting side by side with them they will have the courage of lions.

The women's legion, dressed in natty uniforms of red capes, khaki breeches, leather puttees and Sam Browne belts, submitted an offer to go to the front yesterday and the king of kings accepted promptly.

HITLER DENOUNCES WILSON'S 14 POINTS

Hearers Applaud as Reichsfuehrer Scoffs at American President's Peace Plan.

By The Associated Press

NUERNBERG, Germany, Sept 11—Reichsfuehrer Hitler in a proclamation read to the Nazi party congress [illegible] President Woodrow Wilson's 14 points today, and the delegates assembled from all Germany burst into a hurricane of applause.

Where are the 14 points of Wilson and where is the world today? asked Hitler. The reich (Germany) is no longer a tool and no longer an object of foreign maneuvering, but now is in security, a security not by pacts but by the real power of the nation and by the firm will of its leadership.

President Wilson early in 1918 offered to the world in general and to Germany in particular a program of 14 points which served as the basis for the final conclusion of peace ending the World war and for the eventual establishment of the League of Nations.

We Nazis intend to live in peace and quiet with our neighbors. It is not necessary for us to prove our security by any demonstrations. It is sufficient that we ourselves know it.

We see in our army the protection for peaceful labor. And when we are forced to make sacrifices then we will make them for our liberty and labor.

This army is our most valued and proudest possession.

TWO COMMISSIONERS QUIT PENSION BOARD

The county board, Mr McCurdy said, did not care to make second and third choices, having expressed its opinion in the original selection of Mr Moehn. The board and Mr Berrodin have been deadlocked on the selection of an investigator since early August, the board refusing to certify second and third choices and Mr Berrodin refusing to appoint the board's choice, Mr Moehn.

Mr McCurdy said the board does not have any knowledge of Berrodin's reason for refusing to appoint Mr Moehn but expressed the belief that the objection to Mr Moehn is of a political nature.

It was learned that Mr Moehn is a Republican whereas two of the remaining three men on the civil service commission's eligibility list for investigator are Democrats. Had the county commissioners followed instruction of Mr Berrodin and made second and third choices, the names of at least one of the two Democrats on the eligibility list would have to be placed before Mr Berrodin, it appeared.

The three men on the eligibility list for investigator from which the commissioners had they followed Mr Berrodin's instructions would have made second and third choices are Allen L. Cryder, Walter F. Mathiot and Albert L. Thomasson, all of Marion, Mr McCurdy said. He added he understood that Mr Cryder and Mr Thomasson are Democrats and Mr Mathiot a Republican.

Office Without Investigation

As a result of the deadlock over appointment of an investigator the Marion county pension office has been without the services of an investigator since Aug. 1, the expiration date of the provisional appointments of Mrs Barnhouse and Mrs Bertha Shoup, both of whom worked in the office as investigators prior to the time the civil service lists of eligibles for the position was made up. James L. Kirby, administrator in charge of the Marion county pension office, said he and Mrs Lucy Schofield of Marion, working as an office assistant, have been handling the work of the office without other help since Aug 1. Although able to handle the present volume of work Mr Kirby said he will need the help of an investigator at least by Oct 1 when the task of reinvestigating applications is begun.

Mr McCurdy this morning said Mr Berrodin, in addition to refusing to appoint Mr Moehn as investigator, also has refused to give Mrs Schofield, who he said is a Republican, a permanent appointment as office assistant although her name was the only one certified by the civil service commission as being eligible for appointment to that position.

She was given a provisional appointment as office assistant on Aug 1 and has been working apparently without pay since that time rather than leave the work of the office entirely to Kirby.

Weiss Won't Resign

J. O. Weiss, chairman of the board of county commissioners and member with the other two commissioners of the county old age pension board, said this morning he intends to see this thing through. He asserted he does not intend to join the other two members of the board in resigning at least for the present, and I may not resign at all.

Mr Weiss and Mr Cusic are Democratic members of the board of commissioners and Mr McCurdy is a Republican.

It appeared today that resignation of Mr McCurdy and Mr Cusic will result in appointment of at least two new members of the county board of aid for the aged by Mr Berrodin. The pension law, officials said, provides that in cases where the county commissioners refuse to serve as a board of aid for the aged the state chief of the division of aid for the aged shall appoint a board of three to five members with approval of the state welfare director.

NAZIS BAR JEWISH PUPILS FROM SCHOOL

All Between Ages of 6 and 11 Must Leave, Will Be Educated in Segregated Units

By The Associated Press

BERLIN, Sept 11—Nazis purged their public schools yesterday by ordering Jewish children to get out. Bernhard Rust, Prussian commissioner for culture and education, chose the opening of the Nazi party convention at Nurnberg to announce that Jewish school children between the ages of six and 11 must leave by next Easter.

Separate public schools which the Jewish children must attend will be opened on that date. The decree ordering the preparations so all pure German schools must be free from Jewish and foreign influences.

It was emphasized that previous attempts to segregate the Jews solely on the basis of church affiliation had not proved successful and said whether a Jew is a member of a synagog or not he will be classified as Jewish.

This decree, said an official commentary, is taken with full accord of the Nazi racial policy office, of which Dr Alfred Rosenberg, leader of the Nazi pagan faith movement, is chief, and signifies a further advance in racial laws.

New Germany gives notice that Germany in no wise intends to give up the fundamental basis of its race policy as some foreign papers profess to believe.

REPORT ISSUED ON TOWNSHIPS

Examiners' Audit of … Is Received … Officials

… coveries totaling … to trustees regarding the handling of affairs are made … examiners of the … inspection and supervision of public offices made following an examination of records and accounts of Marion county townships.

… was made by … examiner and W. E. … assistant examiner … records and accounts of each township for the period May 5, 1933 to Feb. 22, 1935. The examiners' report takes up 56 pages of legal size paper.

Most of the findings for recovery are the result of minor errors in computing compensation for township officials or their employes or the failure of … banks in which the townships had funds on deposit to make allowance for depository interest during the time the closed institutions held public funds. The examiner made five findings against closed banks and bondsmen.

The examiner made one finding for $175 against R. B. Howison for money he received for scraping roads for the Montgomery township trustees. The examiner contended he was not entitled to work for the township within one year after he himself had held the office of township trustee and consequently made the finding.

Two purchases of road machinery were criticized by the examiner. One was purchase of a road adjustor from the Gledhill Road Machinery Co. of Galion by the Pleasant township trustees for $476.55 without advertising for bid and without making a record of the purchase agreement in the minute book of the trustees. The other was purchase of a road scraper from the same company by the Salt Rock township trustees who gave notes in payment. The examiner criticized this purchase contending that the trustees did not act in accordance with laws governing the issuance of notes to pay for equipment.

In a majority of the townships the examiner commented that the minutes of the proceedings of the trustees were not kept in sufficient detail. He commented especially on the absence of arrangements for road improvement work and the purchase of supplies, pointing out that in many instances the only record of such transactions was a bill approved by the trustees and paid by them without any mention of the transaction in the minute book.

Trustees of Bowling Green, Montgomery and Grand townships were instructed to prepare a contract or agreement with the Campbell National bank of LaRue which they had selected as a depository for township funds. Insufficient evidence of terms of the depository agreement is provided in the present township records, the examiner pointed out.

The examiner sets up a complete financial statement for each township for the period covered by the report and finds that the total outstanding bonded indebtedness of the county's townships is $70,441.63. Six townships are shown to have no bonded indebtedness. They are Grand Prairie, Green Camp, Marion, Montgomery, Prospect and Waldo. The indebtedness of the others is as follows: Big Island $4,155.39, Bowling Green $6,127.40, Claridon $6,596.86, Grand $12,105.26, Pleasant $2,231.04, Richland $5,116.50, Salt Rock $11,797, Scott $3,851.85, Tully $15,725.51.

The Stars Say--

For Thursday, Sept. 12

A DAY of excellent opportunities for advancement, achievement and increase of fortune is heralded by the prevailing planetary configurations, but this may not be without its conflicts, doubts and entanglements. There may be curious contacts or intriguing developments, both in employment and in the private relations. But withal there are opportunities to be had for the asking, particularly through the friendly aid and solid support of those in power and prestige.

Those whose birthday it is are on the threshold of a year of splendid opportunities for advancement, increase of fortune and enhanced personal power, prestige and position. The friendship of those of influence may be sought with assurance, but in all there is a note of the intriguing, singular or baffling to be guarded against.

A child born on this day may be of splendid talents and exalted ambitions, but tinged by the curious or subtly alien arcana.

STORM WRECKS HOME OF MARION COUPLE

Florida Residence of Mr. and Mrs. Harve E. Klinefelter Damaged.

Mr. and Mrs. Harve E. Klinefelter, former residents of Marion, were called to their home at Clearwater, Fla., Saturday following the receipt of a telegram advising them of the damages done to their home by the storm last week. A part of the roof had been blown from the residence, the message stated. The furniture in that part of the house had been removed to a protected area, they were informed. Mr. and Mrs. Klinefelter, who come north each year for the summer, planned to remain here until about Oct. 10.

Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Douce of Clearwater, also former residents of Marion, suffered no serious ill effects from the storm according to word received by relatives here. A letter written by Mrs. Douce at their home Thursday night of last week was received yesterday by her sister, Mrs. H. R. Allegood of North Seffner avenue.

So far as Mrs. Douce knew at the time, their property damage was slight and they were safe. She described the storm as starting with an all-day rain on Tuesday followed by a windstorm at night. With the continuation of the storm the electric power was shut off. They had no ice, mail or milk deliveries. Warnings to remain indoors prepared them somewhat for the storm's approach and windows were nailed down and doors barred. While their roof was yet intact, their dooryard was strewn with roofs of houses and neighboring buildings and the ground was covered with oranges and grapefruit blown from the trees in the orchards.

Your Health

BY DR. R. S. COPELAND

High Blood Pressure

Despite the great reduction in typhoid fever, tuberculosis and other infectious diseases, most persons who have passed middle age are not living as long as might be expected. This must be due to the increase in chronic disorders among those of adult life.

High blood pressure is a cause or a result of many chronic disorders of the human body and is a hindrance to long life. Many persons go along quite unaware that they have high blood pressure until some serious disturbance occurs. Others discover the trouble only because of a casual health examination.

If all persons were subjected to periodic health examinations there is no doubt that many chronic illnesses would be recognized early. Then treatment would begin immediately and much suffering would be avoided.

If high blood pressure has occurred in your family it would be a wise move to consult with your doctor. Make sure that you are not bordering on high blood pressure or that you are not already afflicted with this disturbance. When high blood pressure is recognized before it has had a chance to exert its damaging influence upon the body, beneficial treatment can be inaugurated for the disease causing it.

High blood pressure may be the result of some hereditary factor. In many instances it can be traced to fatigue or overwork of the nervous system. At times it is the result of overeating and overweight. Alcohol, tobacco, infections and faulty diet are other contributory factors.

Neglect of high blood pressure is dangerous. Its continuance will harm the heart and kidneys. These are vital organs and if they are weakened or impaired in function serious body changes may result.

A person afflicted with high blood pressure should place himself in the hands of a competent physician. He will outline a method of rest and exercise suitable for the particular case. The doctor will prescribe the necessary medicine and treatment to prevent serious complications.

Usually the sufferer from high blood pressure is of the highly emotional type. It may be that he is worried because of business matters or family difficulties. These factors are detrimental to normal health and not infrequently have elevated blood pressure among the effects. In such cases rest and relaxation are imperative.

Since most cases of high blood pressure are associated with overweight, it is advisable that the diet be guided in an effort to reduce. This should be gradual as too rapid loss of weight is dangerous and only places an additional strain on the heart and kidneys.

In addition, infections of the teeth, nasal sinuses and other structures warrant medical attention. Absorption of toxins or poisons from infected areas may lead to an increase of the blood pressure.

Never neglect high blood pressure. With proper care and attention it need not be a handicap to good health.

FREAK TIMOTHY

Spear of Hay With Two Heads Found On Farm

A spear of forked timothy hay said by its owner to be one of the rarest of rare finds is the property of G. L. Farick of Claiborne. Instead of one head there are two branching from the slender stalk.

In 51 years of farming it is the only specimen he has ever seen, he said, and the only time he ever heard of a similar find was in a newspaper article devoted to the subject of forked hay.

The specimen was brought to The Star office yesterday as proof. Its owner is so certain of its rarity that he feels R. J. Scott would find it interesting enough for his scrapbook cartoon.

Mr. Farick's son Homer found the spear accidentally while walking in the field on their 82 acre farm. It has been pressed in the family Bible.

CHAPTER 24

New Home

E[illegible] in the hospital [illegible] first and stayed [illegible] then gradual[illegible] lengthened. Two [illegible] Edwin moved [illegible] to the room [illegible] His happiness [illegible] great to bear. [illegible] Charlotte as soon as [illegible] very briefly and casually, because she couldn't dare let herself go. But Charlotte understood and answered the letter at once.

"Emily [illegible]

"The cards [illegible] seemed to be stacked again [illegible] probably done [illegible] that is [illegible] not so sure [illegible] for [illegible] or anyone else. But then I can't [illegible] myself with any man eating out his heart for me.

"One thing though, I [illegible] never let you [illegible] let you [illegible] I mean [illegible] Don't [illegible] you [illegible] atrophy [illegible] You have got a [illegible] white picket fence.

"I'm shipping your [illegible] and enclosing you [illegible] the check [illegible] of battle. [illegible]

"I love you a great deal, infant.

"Charlotte."

The letter filled her with an unbearable yearning for Charlotte, for the heartening influence of Charlotte and the keenness of her mind that was as stimulating as an electric vibrator. But she questioned the advice it contained.

The little house was sweet, a New England cottage of white clapboard with a white picket fence and a flagstone walk and big fat boxwoods at the door. There was to be a garden at the back, so far Edwin had gone on no farther than a pond with gold and silver fish.

He hadn't offered it for sale after all. It had been built for Emily, and it seemed incredible that Emily wouldn't one day live in it with him. Now his faith had been justified and he moved in a rosea[te] haze.

Emily worked frantically because she had learned in Birmingham that if you worked very hard you were usually too tired to think after you went to bed.

She couldn't furnish the house and plant her garden at the same time, and while her heart was with the garden there was very little that could be done with it until fall, so she concentrated upon immediate necessities such as chairs and tables and rugs.

Frances dropped in often to offer suggestions, secure in the conviction that her wider experience and maturer taste were indispensable to the furnishings of Emily's home. She dropped in this morning.

"I notice in the paper that hairallah is having a marvelous sale of Orientals," she announced.

* * *

Emily was hanging curtains. She adjusted the folds of the drapery and stepped back to consider the effect. "Is he—"

"Yes," Frances cocked her birdlike head. "The gathers are a little thick under your right hand. I thought we might go down tomorrow and see them."

Emily continued to arrange the drapery. It was a sunny chintz with little Valentine bouquets on an apple green ground.

"But I'm not interested in Orientals, darling. In the first place I couldn't afford them, and in the second they don't go with a New England cottage."

"But you won't always live in a cottage, and Orientals last a lifetime. Besides, your father and I wanted to help you get them."

Emily smiled at her. "Bless you both." She couldn't tell her mother that the frosty elegance of the Felton home was just what she wanted to avoid.

"I'll get the cheaper ones now, and by the time they're worn out perhaps I'll be ready for the other ones. Give me a rain check on them."

"What are you planning to have?" Frances' tone implied that whatever it was, it was probably impractical.

"Plain taupe for the big ones and a few small hooked ones where they'll do the most good. Aunt Mandy's making me some braided ones for the bedrooms."

"Aunt Mandy?"

"Yes. I was over there one day a year ago for the laundry, and she was working on the cunningest rug I ever saw. I made up my mind then that if I ever had a house she'd do me some. She's tickled to death over doing 'em."

Frances came as near smiling as it is possible for a perfect lady to come. "I hoped you'd have Browne do your house instead of picking up things here and there as you're doing."

Emily twinkled wickedly at her. "Do you know why I didn't? Because whenever you go into one of his houses some one always trills, 'Oh, I know Browne did this. It looks exactly like him.' I don't want my house to look like Browne's. I want it to look like—like Emily Barnes."

Her mother shrugged delicately, thereby disclaiming all responsibility for the very probable gaucheries of her daughter's completed home. Emily came down from her perch to survey the finished drapery.

The door knocker sounded, and Emily sighed as she went to answer it. "There ought to be a law," she thought rebelliously, "against morning callers."

The caller was her mother-in-law, and Emily's heart sank. Mrs. Barnes wouldn't approve of the new draperies; they didn't look serviceable enough. But she smiled gaily.

"Come in. You're just in time to pass judgment."

Mrs. Barnes looked gratified. She was a plump, rather dowdy little woman who had let herself go considerably more than Frances Felton had, and prided herself upon it.

In fact, Lucy Barnes prided herself upon a great many things. Upon the fact, for example, that Mr. Barnes was her lord and master instead of her companion, that he told her what to believe and put all the household accounts because women had no head for figures, that she had completely forgiven Emily for having behaved so disgracefully toward Edwin, that she had her clothes made at home because the materials in ready-made dresses were so shoddy nowadays.

"In time to pass judgment on what?" she asked brightly.

"The living room draperies." Emily led the way to the room.

Mrs. Barnes, having greeted Frances with excessive cordiality, stood back to observe the apple-green chintzes. "Won't they fade?"

"No," Emily assured her. "They're sunfast."

Mrs. Barnes looked disappointed. Her own draperies were dark red and had been in use, with the exception of the summer months, for twelve years. In June they were taken down and cleaned, and in September they were put back. They were very durable curtains.

"They're very bright and cheerful," she conceded.

"They're very well suited to this type of house, I think," Frances stated.

Emily wanted to laugh. Whatever misgivings Frances might have about her daughter's taste would never be communicated to an outsider. Frances also prided herself.

Mrs. Barnes sat down in the frailest Heppelwhite chair. "Don't let me stop you. I can only stay a minute."

"I was through anyhow. I'm glad of an excuse to stop."

Frances rose. "I must send William to your father so he'd better go." She considered offering to drop Mrs. Barnes at home and decided that it would savor too much of speeding the parting guest.

Mr. Barnes didn't believe in chauffeurs and during business hours Mrs. Barnes walked. "If you and Edwin haven't any plans," she added, "I hope you'll come to dinner tonight."

Emily sighed with relief. Her maid had been out for two days and she was rapidly coming to the conclusion that her domestic accomplishments weren't meant to include cooking.

"We'll be charmed. In addition to the company, the idea of eating food I haven't prepared is entrancing."

When Frances had gone Lucy Barnes said fondly, "I dropped by to ask you to supper with us tonight, but of course we can't offer the inducements that Frances can."

Emily wanted very badly to kick over a table and was suddenly ashamed of herself. "I'm so sorry. I didn't know. And if you think you haven't any inducements, just extend another invitation and see how quickly we accept it."

She took her mother-in-law's plump arm. "Come and see the chest of drawers I had Turner do over for me."

But tomorrow the inevitable dinner with the Barnes must be gone through with.

Married Comrades

— BY ADELE GARRISON —

Junior Impatient as He Learns of Joys at the Lake

I THINK if I lived near a ferry and had plenty of leisure I should spend many hours in traveling back and forth upon the boats. Their smooth gliding motion, the stretch of water rippling to the curving shore line, the sense of escape from the limitations of land—all these appeal to me so much that I think it is as well that I am not within walking distance of a boat with a ten-cent fare for pedestrians.

I know that Katherine shares my feeling and was not surprised to hear her say softly:

"I'm coming up in front with you, if I may. Faith, like the little lady she is, has gone to sleep. Isn't she a picture?"

"Worthy of any gallery," I said lightly, but with the conceit of every mother feeling that my encomium was justified. "Isn't it lucky she's asleep. We'll be able to enjoy this without being disturbed."

Enjoy the Trip

Katherine slipped noiselessly from her seat to the running board and then to the front of the boat.

"There," she said, smiling as she sat down beside me and closed the door. "Not even a mouse can get to her, and we can invite our souls at leisure."

As we began to warp into the ferry slip, Katherine drew a deep breath.

"Thank you," she said, opening her door and raising the button catch of the rear one.

"For what?" I asked, keeping quiet.

"Exactly," she flashed back.

"Then I owe you a debt of gratitude also," I said. "A chatty companion during this ferry trip would have been worse than a mosquito."

"Amen," once, thrice, and again she called, and then Mary came back to her car. Williams, herding the boys before him, saw that Roderick and Junior were safe in their respective seats before taking the collie back with him to the car he was driving.

Junior Excited

Junior was voluble with excitement as soon as we had passed the ferry barrier and were out on the open road again. I have trained him to keep quiet whenever there is any piece of driving which requires shifting of gears or unusual attention to the wheel, and he heroically kept still until we were well off the ferry. Then he exploded.

"Say, Mums," he began, "did you see Scottie when we were at the rail?"

"No, dear, I didn't," I told him truthfully, for secure in the knowledge that Williams was with the small boys and Mary, I had given myself up to watching the water, the sky, the shore line and the other boats, and had paid no attention whatever to the group by the rail.

"Gee, he's crazy about the water," he said. "I guess Mr. Williams thought he was going to go right off the rail—he tugged so. You know, we always take Scottie a little way out in the boat and then let him jump over and swim to shore. I guess he thought that was what we wanted him to do this time.

"Anyway, he tugged and tugged at his leash and finally Mr. Williams said, 'Have either of you kids got any influence over this dog? Will he mind you?' And we told him sure he was our dog, and he said then to tell him to stay where he was. So I took Scottie by the ears and talked to him and after that he was just as quiet. Gee, he's a smart dog."

Impatient for Lake

"I agree with you, Junior," I told him, for perhaps the thirtieth time—praise of the collie is a theme song of both Junior and Roderick. Then after a half minute of silence and patent reflection Junior said, "Say, Mums," in a tone which told me he was about to voice a cherished desire.

"Yes, sir."

"Will Scottie have a chance to swim up in New Hampshire?"

I smiled down at him quizzically.

"Don't you think that's rather a foolish question when we have told you that the cabins we're going to have are right on the lake, and that you will have a rowboat, a pier and a wonderful sandy beach? Don't you think you will have a chance to take Scottie in?"

He gave a wriggle of delight and a sigh of content, then looked up at me with wistful eagerness.

"Couldn't we go faster, Mums?" he asked, "so as to get there quicker? It just seems as if I couldn't wait."

JOHN H. BAIN GIVES ROTARY CLUB TALK

Urges People To Be Alert Against Destructive Elements.

An appeal for thinking among the people of America to offset elements which menace the national structure was made by John H. Bain, Marion business man, in an address before the Marion Rotary club at its weekly luncheon meeting yesterday at Hotel Harding.

Taking as his subject "Sociology or Socialism," Mr. Bain discussed the two fundamental forces, positive and negative, which prevail in nature and in human relationships. He urged patriotic citizens to prevent damaging negative forces from gaining ascendancy.

Voicing the belief that there is too much indifference and unconcern among the American people in their attitude toward conditions which call for a remedy, he warned against the tendency to let George do it, and declared the forces who would undermine our national institutions are overlooking no opportunity to advance their work of destruction.

He referred to the ballot box as the most effective agency for assuring national security and stability.

The club's program for the day was in charge of John Staff as chairman.

SEASON IS OPENED BY CLUB AT LARUE

The Ole [illegible] Friends club of LaRue opened its season of meetings Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Jacob Bayer. Eleven members responded to roll call. Mrs. Velma Tilbaft, president, appointed Mrs. Anna Grappy and Mrs. Blanche Little a flower committee for the year. Miss Dorothy Louise Burbaugh was elected secretary to fill a vacancy left by the resignation of Miss Grace Amstutz. Mrs. Little, Mrs. Ethel Cochran, Mrs. Gladys [illegible], Miss LaVerne Grappy and Miss Ivah Owen took part in a program. Contests conducted by Mrs. Tribaft and Mrs. Bayer were won by Miss Marjorie Grappy. Miss LaVerne Grappy assisted the hostess in serving refreshments.

Potato Rebellion.

The potato control provisions in the amendment to the agricultural adjustment act are rousing many hitherto placid citizens to alarm. A potato rebellion is indicated, if the government attempts to enforce the law.

Potato control is a logical development of crop control. The question is on crop control, therefore. Is it logical? It must lead inevitably to restrictions on other crops, besides potatoes. The meaning of agricultural regimentation has been made plain to every housewife who might be fined or imprisoned for using potatoes raised illegally.

Potato control started with cotton control. Land taken out of cotton cultivation was planted in peanuts. Consequently, a peanut control act was necessary. Land taken out of peanut cultivation was planted to potatoes, and a potato control act became necessary.

Congressmen who objected to the principle of cotton control were found in some instances to favor potato control. That was because their constituents had been affected by application of the crop control principle in such a way that they needed the benefit of control over other crops.

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, forecasting the ultimate development of nationalism in agriculture, once said:

"If we finally go all the way toward nationalism it may be necessary to have compulsory control of marketing, licensing of plowed land, and ....quotas for every farmer for every product for each month in the year. We may have to have government control of all surpluses, and a far greater degree of public ownership than we have now. It may be necessary to make a public utility out of agriculture. ....Every plowed land would have its permit sticking up on its post."

The potato control act, which brings Secretary Wallace's prophecy close to fulfillment, has revealed the meaning of crop control. It threatens to be the turning point in a trend whose direction previously had been given no general notice.

Discouragement.

Abandonment of the part of the federal government's housing program which cannot be advanced to the construction stage this fall seems to be a confession of discouragement. Apparently, numerous obstacles in the path of the movement to provide model low cost housing in certain areas proved too much for administrators of the program.

In yielding, they show once more the great difficulty encountered in the distribution of federal funds. There are, in the first place, constitutional limits on the type and manner of federal expenditures. In the second place, the government cannot count on any higher degree of cooperation in such activities than private enterprise can command.

With a quarter of a billion dollars to spend, the housing drive was able to allot only a few million. Over a period of years, the whole appropriation undoubtedly could be spent, but model housing was a detail in the unemployment program. President Roosevelt feels the wisest thing is to abandon further extension of the drive, thereby releasing the unexpended and unalloted balance for other purposes, if necessary.

The purpose of the housing drive, viewed broadly, was commendable. Execution, however, was faulty. In that observation lies the chief trouble of the new deal, admirable in purpose but so many times failing in execution of high purposes.

Anger in Germany.

Germany's latest outburst of anger against what it terms an insult from the United States is more than justified. Under the same circumstances, Americans would be angry, too. They can be thankful the same circumstances do not exist in their country.

A New York City magistrate, in dismissing charges against four alleged communists for assault upon the German flag aboard the German liner Bremen, went out of his way to deliver a personal insult to the German flag, comparing it with the skull and crossbones of piracy.

Americans understand that such a remark has no official significance, because it represents only the prejudice of a municipal official. Germans, whose local officials are responsible directly to the national government, cannot understand such a distinction. Individualism is not recognized in the Nazi doctrine.

The New York magistrate, besides showing bad taste, has embarrassed the state department. He must have been aware of the effect of his injudicious comment, which certainly had no proper place in performance of his duty, the administration of justice. It is not becoming in an official of his station to assume the right to make incendiary comments on a government friendly to his own. In the whole chain of events of the Bremen disaster, there has been reason to feel that New York City has served the national interest badly. Discretion could have prevented anger in Germany, which threatens to grow to grave proportions.

Death, The Leveler.

Huey P. Long has passed from the political stage into the history books, where he may be treated more sympathetically than he was treated during his turbulent public career. It is interesting to speculate on what may be the sketch historians will give to future generations.

Unsympathetic contemporaries often have said he was a product of his age, meaning that he was able to get attention because he answered certain demands peculiar to a restless population during a period of doubtfulness. It seems certain he will be evaluated historically in relation to his background.

The record of his progression from local office to the governorship and thereafter to the senate probably will seem less important in perspective than the record of his accumulation of political power in Louisiana. He was primarily a political boss; the public offices he held were secondary to his personal influence over the affairs of his state.

Future generations will read that he was a demagogue. They may not know, however, that he was a demagogue who frequently commanded tolerance for his antics with a highly developed theatrical ability. He was one of the colorful figures of his generation, a man who could be a clown, an amusing critic and an entertaining companion as well as a ruthless fighter, a bore and an unscrupulous obstructionist.

The circumstances of his death may endow Huey Long with martyrdom. The compassion which is characteristic of Americans in the presence of violence was manifest in abundance after his assassination. While it is true many Americans believed Sen. Long was a subversive influence in government, no one honestly believed his murder was justified. Assassination cannot be condoned, no matter how great the provocation.

Huey Long, dead, deserves a respite from the animosity he incurred during his lifetime. Death, the leveler, has freed him at last from the combat he seemed to enjoy. The least his opponents can do is to retire and leave him to the kindest memories of his friends.

Beginning.

In comparison with the $150,000,000 needed to complete the project, the $5,000,000 appropriated by President Roosevelt for construction of a canal across Florida linking the Atlantic ocean with the Gulf of Mexico is almost negligibly small. It permits a beginning of the undertaking, however, and under the circumstances a beginning is the most important thing.

After a certain amount of preliminary work has been done, the opposition's arguments can be answered with the contention it wouldn't be good business to destroy the original investment. Many sections of Florida, particularly those which lie south of the proposed route, are opposed to construction of the canal. They claim the idea is not soundly conceived.

They doubtlessly have good cause for believing so. Few projects of such magnitude can escape the charge of doing damage as well as good. The St. Lawrence waterway, for instance, highly desirable to some regions, would be harmful to other regions. Southern Florida cannot be blamed for urging caution in a plan which would increase its isolation.

The $5,000,000 appropriated by President Roosevelt from the work relief fund will permit the beginning of work on the canal as a relief project. The balance needed must be provided by a congressional appropriation, if provided at all. Advocates of a big ditch across Florida can thank the federal spending policy for a beginning. If the rest of the money never is obtained, once the job is started, that would be news. After the $5,000,000 is put into the ground, it will be easy to argue more millions should be put in after it to save the first investment.

DEVASTATING 1858 FROST

Morrow county suffered with other counties in the state in the killing frost of 1858. Scarcely a vestige of the growing crops were to be seen. Corn was about eight or 10 inches high, and potatoes had reached the growth that made the effect of the frost most damaging. All the grain was ruined and the people found themselves face to face with the prospect of starvation.

On Sunday following the frost, which occurred on a Friday night, the churches were deserted. Farmers wandered through their stricken fields and the villagers thronged the country anxious to measure the extent of the disaster.

Fortunately there were some late crops that were not injured by the frost and the less fortunate ones set at once to repair the damage as far as possible. Corn and potatoes were replanted, buckwheat was sowed instead of wheat and thanks to an unusually long season the crops matured.

The frost had its effect on the manufacturing industries of the county. One dealer in agriculture machinery who had secured orders for mowing machines had all his orders revoked except one.

New York Day by Day

NEW YORK, Sept. 11—Jascha Heifetz has attained the peak of his musical career and is likely to stay there for a number of years. His astonishing draw at the Stadium concerts some weeks ago surpassed any event ever held there. For two successive evenings his audiences numbered more than 16,000 each.

The vast gatherings that heard his concertos with the Philharmonic realized they were hearing an artist who is neck and neck with Kreisler as the greatest violinist of their day. The magnificent silences followed by outbursts of cheering formed a dramatic emotional contrast.

Since Heifetz came to America a boy prodigy, he has grown steadily in the esteem of music lovers and critics. The past few years—perhaps since his marriage to Florence Vidor, the movie star — have brought forth increasing "heart" beauty and fire to his playing. Doubtless he is now at the top.

The violinist is still in his early 30's and has two lovely children, a boy and a girl. When he is not on tour divides his time between Balboa, Calif. and a Park avenue penthouse and plays in all corners of the globe. Added to his genius is a keen sense of humor.

Fifty-Second street, between 5th and 6th avenues, continues to be the most astonishing restaurant block New York has ever known. In a mushroom growth, it has in a two-year stretch added 18 eating places to the block's pioneers—Tony's and No. 21. Many are open-fronted with sidewalk tables. And quite a number prosper solely on overflow trade. The next block east is becoming cafe conscious and six French! find places have opened.

I hear Will Rogers, so fidgety on terra firma, was as composed as a statue, flying. It's the only way he found to relax. He did not even chew gum. Also he was without slightest flying fear, being somewhat a fatalist. The thing that worried him most in air travels was his daily newspaper dispatch. He was not satisfied unless he delivered the piece, country boy style, to a telegraph office in person. Often he scribbled it on an old envelope.

Henry Mencken, so far as I know, has been the only campaigner against authors and publishers who dish out books without index. His fulminations against indexless volumes have done much to promote their inclusion the past few years. He believes any book that carries more than 15 names of actual people should list them alphabetically in the back.

Incidentally Mencken's endorsement over a decade has been an enormous factor in sales of books. Even when his praise was confined to the limited circulation of the American Mercury it resulted in a word of mouth spread that often fostered best sellers. He was first to forecast the popularity of Sinclair Lewis. He saw talent in the first crude efforts of Jim Tulley, the life termer Ernest Booth and many others. Despite omnivorous reading, he reads slowly and often when a volume takes his eye will re-read several times before going on to another.

What the newspaper editorial room knows as the Lobster Trick is perhaps the profession's most inglorious post and yet in ways vastly important. The origin of the term is vague and has many versions but is descriptive of the watchman on guard as a rule, from 1 a. m. until the arrival of the regular morning staff. The man on the Lobster Trick is often a one man editorial force executing a score of different tasks. If a cataclysmic story breaks he is the general in command, routing the various departments and starting the first motions that in a short time will have the presses awhirl with extra editions. Sometimes he is one who has served in the highest posts at home and abroad but on the down grade prefers anonymity of the Lobster Trick.

Glancing Backward

TEN YEARS AGO

It was Friday, Sept. 11, 1925.

Four navy fliers who had attempted a nonstop flight from San Francisco to Hawaii were found stranded on the island of Kauai in the Pacific ocean after having been missing nine days.

Marion was being advertised for the first time over the radio. Five-minute speeches boosting the city were being broadcast each night from station WIBJ, temporarily set up here through the United Electric Co. Talks had already been given by Dr. G. T. Harding, John H. Clark and J. W. Jacoby. Other speakers scheduled were Mayor M. L. Buckley and Major O. M. Baldinger.

Miss Ruby Craner of Cherry street left for Springfield to enter Wittenberg college.

Miss Philomen Gregg of Delaware avenue returned from a two-months trip to Chimpla, Wash., and other points in the west.

Miss Gladys Louise Morton and Arthur M. Blair, both of Marion, were united in marriage by Rev. Raymond W. Smiley at the First Presbyterian manse on East Church street.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

It was Saturday, Sept. 11, 1915.

A New York dispatch reported that the Anglo-French financial commission had already been assured an American loan for the Allies of not less than $500,000,000 and perhaps $750,000,000. Members of the commission had been invited to be week-end guests of J. P. Morgan at Glen Cove, Long Island.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. John Mosher of Bellevue avenue and a son to Mr. and Mrs. George Griffiths of Silver street.

The Marion Steam Shovel baseball team defeated Jeffreys Mfg. Co. team at Columbus, 6 to 1. An automobile caravan decorated with banners and carrying about 80 passengers, accompanied the team. Mahane and Anderson formed the battery for Marion.

Behind The News In

Washington And Wall Street

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11 — The National Coal association's acceptance of the Guffey bill has weakened the operators in their negotiations for a new agreement with the United Mine Workers. It may or may not remove the threat of a major strike from the White House doorstep.

At first the great Mellon coal interests indorsed the Guffey proposals. But when they couldn't get what they wanted—elimination of submarginal mines and rivals — they backed out. Counsel Don Rose advised that the bill was unconstitutional, though he held otherwise off the record. Anti-Mellon interests made capital of this discrepancy.

Suddenly the Mellon group adopted a neutral attitude. The miners and sympathetic coal operators rushed the measure through Congress in its closing hours. Now that it is law the dominant Pittsburgh interests agree to string along.

Greeks

United Mine President Lewis and the miners' representatives don't place too much trust in this shift of attitude. They think the coal interests intend to control the regional boards which will administer the Guffey Act.

The most powerful operators fought the NRA bituminous code when it was first proposed at Washington. Then, as now, they soft-pedalled their opposition and acquiesced to NRA provisions. But they obtained control of the regional code authorities in many sections of the country and used their power to handicap their rivals. As a result, the code price and marketing structure broke down and necessitated establishment of a new system even if the supreme court had not outlawed the blue eagle.

That's why President Roosevelt's selection of the men who will administer the Guffey act becomes all-important in the eyes of coal capital and labor. Most of the applicants so far have been operators whose companies could not survive the depression. Labor doesn't like the list, fearing they will revert to type. It does not trust coal operators bearing gifts.

Under

Although Charles West, White House liaison man, was named Under Secretary of the Interior to improve relations between Boss Ickes and the politicians Mr. Ickes apparently holds no grudge. Whenever he leaves Washington he gives young Mr. West full authority to act in his place.

But Mr. West won't get much time to serve as the President's research expert and errand boy under the routine mapped out for him by Mr. Ickes. The latter has piled up enough work on the West desk to keep the erstwhile contact man occupied for months.

If the President hoped that the loyal Mr. West would serve as a political check on his independent cabinet member he was mistaken. Mr. Ickes has given his new under secretary an office on a floor four down from his own. Already they refer to Mr. West as "Four Floors Under Secretary."

Useful"

Some wise Republicans are beginning to lose less sleep over Herbert Hoover's political prominence as the 1936 election approaches. They think it might be a good idea to encourage it.

Their idea is that recurrent talk of Mr. Hoover as a possible presidential candidate will draw Democratic fire against him. They have undoubtedly heard that Charley Michelson's publicity strategy is to elaborate on the "Hoover crash" whenever he sends out new deal publicity. The Democrats' one answer to criticism of Mr. Roosevelt seems to be: "Do you want to go back to Hoover?" He is the ghost with whom the Farley forces hope to frighten the political children of 1936.

But if the G. O. P. suddenly names a man who has no provable sympathy with Hoover policies—Borah, Knox or Landon—it would force the Democrats to make a quick shift in strategy. In other words, Mr. Hoover as a "camouflage

Help

The lull in new deal activities these days is not deliberate. It results from the fact that departmental and emergency administrators are occupied with writing regulations to carry out legislation passed in the last few minutes of the recent session.

Until they have been promulgated nobody will know how far-reaching the various new laws are. TVA, AAA and the National Labor Relations Board are drafting rules which entrust them with far greater power than they ever had before. Some of the administrative deductions may surprise the members of congress who cast the votes for these all-powerful statutes.

In fact, letters written to various new deal agencies by Democratic legislators cast a comic sidelight on the recent session. In most instances the members ask for an ABC explanation of the laws which they passed at the request of the White House. The folks back home are apparently asking questions which their representatives can't answer without advice of political counsel.

Notes

A sidelight on politics will be given by the Pennsylvania primaries on Sept. 17....Democratic registrations show gains over Republican as compared with four years ago. Latest information is that Jim Farley and Upton Sinclair didn't make a bargain after all. Sinclair demands too much for turning the Democratic delegation over to Roosevelt.—Hiram Johnson, Republican, will be Roosevelt's right-hand man in touring California. Plenty of speculation surrounding Secretary Morgenthau's trip to Europe—"stabilization?"

NEW YORK, Sept. 11—Formation of the security dealing firm of Morgan, Stanley & Co, Inc. by three Morgan partners and their associates is the most bullish news Wall Street has heard in ages. The move is interpreted as conclusive proof that the financial best minds see a bright future in the securities business. New York's early insistence that the securities act would ruin the investment banking profession is now officially dead and buried.

The Morgans have retained most of their prestige in financial circles despite investigations and such and most of Wall Street is delighted at their return to the wars. The only exceptions to this rule are a few security dealers whose own position is none too firmly established and who fear the effects of such distinguished competition.

There's no doubt that the new firm will be a success. The many corporations with Morgan connections will go to them naturally when questions of financing come up. Insiders estimate that J. P. Morgan & Co. alone should be able to turn three or four hundred million dollars' worth of business a year their way.

Good

As frequently reported here such a split-up in the house of Morgan has been under consideration for more than a year. It was deferred first to see how the securities act would work in practice and also to await reopening of the securities market on a worthwhile scale. The Morgans were satisfied on those points some months ago —but action was still postponed in the hope that the amendment to the banking act of 1935—allowing banks of deposit to underwrite security issues—would be passed. A Morgan partner had a hand in writing that amendment.

If it had gone through it would have meant that J. P. Morgan & Co. itself could have reentered the securities business — and naturally the partners preferred not to separate if they could help it. Hope died when the amendment was rejected and Morgan interests became reconciled to the idea that the legal distinction between commercial banking and security dealing is permanent. Then the split became the only solu- [illegible] banking was rated good enough to overcome a strong disinclination to break up the original Morgan firm. That's the most significant angle of the whole affair.

Forceful

It will be called the American Youth act. Some of its provisions are as follows:

All work projects authorized by the act shall be actually beneficial to the community. Projects shall not be of a military character, nor under the jurisdiction of the War or Navy departments, nor "designed to subsidize any private profit making enterprise."

The secretary of labor and commissioner of education are directed to establish a system of vocational training and employment to provide regular wages for all youth between 16 and 30. These wages shall be at the prevailing rate but in no case less than $15 a week plus $3 for each dependent.

The act shall be administered by National Youth commissions. Not less than one-third of their members shall be elected representatives of youth organizations, not less than one-third shall represent organized labor and the remainder shall be representative of social service, education or consumers' organizations. No person shall serve on such a board who as an employer of labor, "may have any interest in depressing wage levels by a system of apprenticeship wages for young workers."

The benefits of the act shall be extended to all youth without discrimination because of "nativity, sex, race, color, religious or political opinion or affiliation." No youth shall be disqualified from benefits for participation in strikes or refusal to scab.

Funds for the purposes of the act shall be raised by taxes on inheritance, gifts, and individual and corporation incomes of $5000 a year and over.

There is little chance for enactment of the bill but you'll hear a lot about it in early '36.

Aspirin

The poor old securities exchange commission is having a terrible time with registration applications from over-the-counter dealers. Some of the applicants frankly confess to unfavorable court records years ago. The commission has to choose between freezing them out and being accused of undue harshness toward reformed members of society or letting them in and taking the gaff if they should happen to slip again.

They were strong, brave men, capable of facing the dangers and hardships of the western wilds, and skilled in many constructive arts that fitted them to prepare for the families of the settlers who were to arrive later in the year. The men came overland to Sum-

Power of Personality

"Personality" that cannot described was Senator Long's the highest degree.

During the Democratic conv tion of 1932, in Chicago, while G ernor Smith's fight contin against the nomination of New D. Baker, and other conditi made Franklin D. Roosevelt's nom ination possible, a short, stock man, with a strong southern ac cent, appeared on the platform was Huey Long, appearing to de mand what he believed to be political rights and getting them.

Not one in a hundred gathered in the great hall knew his name or ever had heard of him. But the moment he spoke everybody knew that he was "somebody." One reporter, sitting with others before the speakers' stand, after Long appeared telegraphed to a well known newspaper man in the west: "There is one powerful man at this convention, somebody named Huey Long from New Orleans, who makes other 'great Democrats' look and sound like white mice."

When the writer, later, saw Senator Long in New Orleans, well in his political stride, it amazing to see how Long handled men about him, the most import ant officers of the state. He sum moned them by telephone, not with Sunday school language, dealt with them, controlled them as easily as a child controls her dolls.

He had the power, he knew it and they knew it.

A newspaper man said to him: "Senator Long, if this country should ever have a dictator— heaven forbid—you might easily be the man." Long smiled, denial, and continued, with aggeration, relating his providing his state, particularly farm regions, with good roads and giving free books to children in the public and parochial schools.

Senator Long, able politician, powerful personality, knew how to inspire loyalty in his followers and fear in his opponents. Many a man in the senate, while Long was there kept bottled up within his own chest things that he would have liked to say. Fear of Long's answer kept him silent.

Senator Long is part of the past. A picturesque chapter in American life is closed. Long's career shows what great power is developed among men in all parts of the country.

Sixty three players were still in the odd-on struggle to dislodge Little today but the last man to hold a decision over the champion was on the sidelines possibly offering advice. He was Zell Eaton of Oklahoma City who beat Little in the first round of the 1934 Trans-Mississippi 2 and 1. Eaton was erased yesterday by Morton McCarthy of Virginia Beach Va 1 up in 19 holes. Another star and former champion who knew he long last [illegible] George Dunlap of New York also was in the gallery, defeated 3 and 2 by John Goodman of Omaha.

Several upsets were posted in the second round but the grand old man H Chandler Egan [illegible] years old and still outlasting the kids in overtime battles and the tournament [illegible] 15 year old Bobby Dunkleberger of Greensboro N C remained. Egan went 22 holes and shot par all the way to defeat Charles Becker [illegible] year old Chicagoan. Bobby beat Fred Lazard of Garden City N Y 3 and 2.

Out of seven former champions who started out Monday only Egan and Ross Somerville of London Canada remained. England's double threat in Tony Torrance and Robert Sweeney also was wiped out. Canada had three contenders left in John Nash of London and Bud Donovan of Winnipeg and Somerville.

Lee Street Team Falls In Ragged Sixth Contest

Weavers Take City Championship Without Loss, Snyder Walks in Two Runs for Losers.

COMPLETING one of the outstanding season records of any team in Marion's softball history the Silk Mill recreation ball club captured the 1935 city championship last night at Lincoln park. The Weavers downed Lee Street 6 to 2 in the final game of the Little World Series ending its tournament competition without a setback.

Nearly a thousand fans shivered in the cool air last night as finalists staged the most ragged game of the series. Errors were plentiful, hits were scarce and feuds were numerous. Maynard Snyder mound specialist who pitched two teams into the Little World series and the Silk Mill to the championship was still plagued by the all ness which has marked his last three tournament games.

Penny Crabtree hurled a good game but received poor support from his teammates. The Lee Street pitcher allowed only six hits and refused to issue a single pass. Snyder walked seven, forcing in Lee Street two runs by his wild ness. He struck out nine and yielded four hits.

Jimmy Kunkle chunky center fielder of the Silk Mill team settled the issue in the fourth inning when he drove a long hit to deep center field for a homer with two runners aboard. Kunkle's hit was the only one of the inning, but four errors and two force outs had kept the bases crowded.

Francis Robbins Silk Mill right fielder scored the first run of the inning when he forced Snyder out at third and came home as Kerr Conkle juggled Woody Harper's hit to second. Silk Mill scored two runs in the opening inning on two singles an outfield fly and an error.

Mixed in the nine errors credited against the two teams were good fielding performances by Woody Harper, Tony Lashey and Messenger. Harper's throw to home plate kept Lee Street runners shy of home plate. Lashey snagged a circus catch of Messenger's fly in the second inning and the Silk Mill third sacker played well at the hot corner.

A series of feuds between players and officials started in the first inning, when Mike Braham bowled over Joe Conroy in a put out at the plate. Batsmen had words with the decisions of Gus Stoner behind the plate and needless jaws toward the plate and toward Stoner climaxed the display of temper.

COACH SAYS FORGET CHAMPIONSHIP TALK

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS O Sept 11—Deception power and speed. That's the formula laid out by Coach Francis Schmidt for his Ohio State university football team.

The Buck grid candidates told to forget championship talk went through two rough and tumble workouts Tuesday, faced two more today and a similar daily program until Oct 1.

Schmidt sent his hand-picked squad of 49 through stiff fundamental drills and set about on the opening practice day to the development of intricate plays.

From coast to coast the football public observed with interest the progress of the Bucks. Many sports experts concede the Scarlet and Gray team top ranking for the season.

"You guys can forget all about that championship boloney," Schmidt told the squad. "I want you to get out there and hustle and keep so busy you won't have time to think of it.

"We have a lot of new men who'll have to learn the plays. We'll have a lot of new plays for both the new and old men and I suppose half of you have forgotten all you learned last season—so we're practically starting from scratch."

August George of Dayton was the first casualty of a strenuous session of blocking and dummy scrimmage. He received a sprained ankle. Stanley Pincura quarterback of Lorain and John Dwyer sophomore backfield candidate from Clarion Pa were the only ones who failed to show up for the opening practice.

COLUMBUS NEARER THIRD PLACE MONEY

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO Sept 11—Columbus the club which came from down under today held the upper edge in its fight with Kansas City for third place in the American Association final standings and the $1000 that goes with it.

The Red Birds who put on a great drive to come from the second division broke the virtual tie for the third berth yesterday by downing Louisville 8 to 3 in 11 innings while Kansas City was splitting a night doubleheader with St Paul.

Kansas City got off to a good start in its doubleheader in the Blues park winning the first game 12 to 3 behind the steady pitching of Tietje. In the second contest, seven innings by agreement, St Paul had [illegible] big innings, too much for the Blues who lost 11 to 8.

HARDING TEAM NEEDS DEFENSIVE STRENGTH

Offense Clicks Well in Scrimmage, Coach Cramer Works on Plays

If Harding High school football candidates can improve their defensive play before the opening game Saturday afternoon the Presidents will have a good chance of defeating the Tiffin Calvert team in the opener [illegible].

Coach [illegible] Cramer kept his [illegible] the offensive side of the [illegible] time for the scrimmage session. The Harding men [illegible] his charges [illegible] more time to learn plays [illegible] for the opening game. A scrimmage period [illegible] the offense clicking well [illegible] a weak team defensively.

The Harding [illegible] long passes in [illegible] and [illegible] but found [illegible] a different [illegible]. Pence, [illegible] had a big turn in backfield work and showed well in their performance. [illegible] was on the receiving end of [illegible] passes and had little success in breaking through the line. He opened up [illegible] for other ball carriers and seemed to find weak spots when he hit the second [illegible] forward wall [illegible] the passing.

Working well defensively on the [illegible] were Duffy and Scott [illegible] and Jack Foreman. [illegible] on the line. Scrimmage session will probably be on the card for the Harding players today and tomorrow afternoon.

In the second game however [illegible] rightfielder drove in the [illegible] first run in the fourth [illegible] double and sent the [illegible] across in the ninth with a [illegible]. The Giants won 4-2.

The double win brought the [illegible] Yorkers within a game and [illegible] of the Cubs and two games [illegible] half of the Cardinals National League leaders.

CARRIERS LEAD BULLISH TRADE

Several Issues Hit New Highs with Motors and Accessories in Demand

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK Sept 11—Bullishness grew fervid in the stock market today Speculation for the advance was switched to the laggard rail shares and trading swelled to large proportions

Much of the list churned about without getting anywhere but several issues reached new highs for the year or longer with motors and accessories again actively bought Favorable midweek trading statistics moderate firmness in the cotton and grain market and a fairly steady tone in bonds provided a favorable background

Shares advancing around a point to new highs for the recovery included New York Central Great Northern preferred Chesapeake and Ohio General Motors Chrysler and Radio Preferred B American Telephone reached a new peak with a fractional advance and Air Reduction rose 2 points on an extra dividend of $1.50 Such low priced motors as Packard and Studebaker were again turned over in large volume fractionally higher Steels were little better than steady

Professional bullish activity in the rails was said to be based both on a belief that they were behind the market and the hope that chart readers and other market technicians would take a more enthusiastic attitude toward the list if the rails could be brought forward to confirm the advance in the industrials

PROFIT TAKING CUTS WHEAT PRICES DOWN

Hedging Also Apparent as Speculative Demand Proves Insufficient

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO Sept 11—Setbacks of wheat values late today resulted from profit taking on the part of holders and because of hedging sales

Hedging proved burdensome in view of notable absence of any sustained speculative demand It was current gossip however that a good export business had been witnessed in Canadian wheat
